Camping at Farmer Freddie's

Ted van Lieshout & Philip Hopman (ill.)

After spending time moving, planting, and ploughing on the farm, Barry is very tired and ready for a holiday. However, Farmer Freddie thinks the farm can't be left alone for a whole week. He sets up a small tent for Barry in the meadow. Little sister Sue wants to join as well, and Freddie makes a little extra space for her. Soon, the animals come to visit the tent. The chickens, sheep, pigs and cows want to join, and even the horse stops by. Freddie keeps pitching tents. Gradually, it turns into a real campsite!

Since 2012, Ted van Lieshout and Philip Hopman have been working tirelessly on the Farmer Freddie series, which is one of the most successful children's book series in the Netherlands, with hundreds of thousands of copies sold. In 2025, the first Farmer Freddie sound book was released. For more information about the international option publishers, please get in touch.

Little Bee

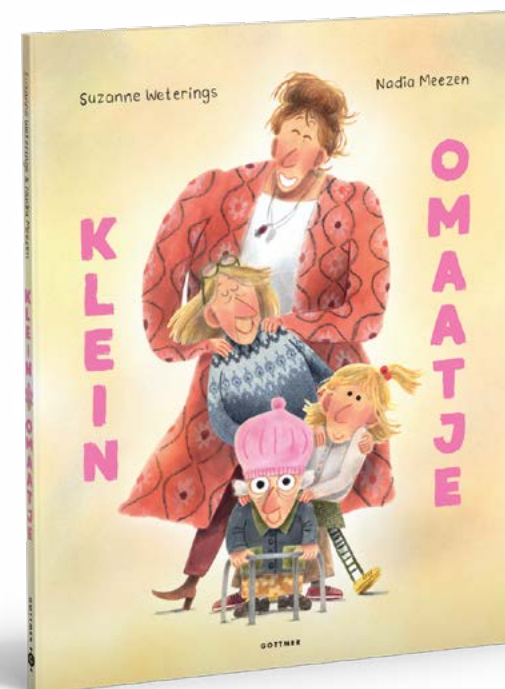

Suzanne Weterings & Yara Ruby (ill.)

A little bee is on a quest to find some sweet nectar, but her journey is filled with challenges. Luckily, she doesn't have to face them alone! The reader can help the little bee by clapping to scare away a bird, making a tent with their hands to provide shelter from the rain, or gently blowing her along so that she can continue her adventure. And at the end of the road? A sweet surprise awaits!

Little Bee is an interactive board book for toddlers, in the tradition of Don't Wake Up The Tiger! by Britta Teckentrup. Through simple, playful actions, young children can become part of the story. Suzanne Weterings' lively, welcoming text invites readers to travel alongside the brave little bee. At the same time, Yara Ruby's charming illustrations create a bright, joyful world, one where curiosity, participation, and a cute bee take centre stage.

A fun interactive book for toddlers: help the little bee find her nectar!

Little Granny

Suzanne Weterings & Nadia Meezen (ill.)

When little Granny is heading into the city for a well-deserved day of pampering and dressing up, she is accompanied by her great-granddaughter. With her trusty walker, Little Granny shuffles slowly across the bustling square when suddenly... CLUNK! The walker is wedged fast in a hole. It's completely stuck. Luckily, her great-granddaughter has a brilliant idea. She bends over and Little Granny carries on, using her great-granddaughter as a walker instead. Thankfully Granny's festive day of preparations can go ahead, and Granny will be on time for the big party! But who is the party for?

Little Granny is a feel-good story about four generations having fun together and a delight to read aloud. Suzanne Weterings' rhyming text flows effortlessly, paired with the cheerful, atmospheric illustrations by Nadia Meezen.

A heartwarming story for all grandmothers and their (great-)grandchildren

The Wibbly-Wobbly Weasels party!

Yvonne Jagtenberg

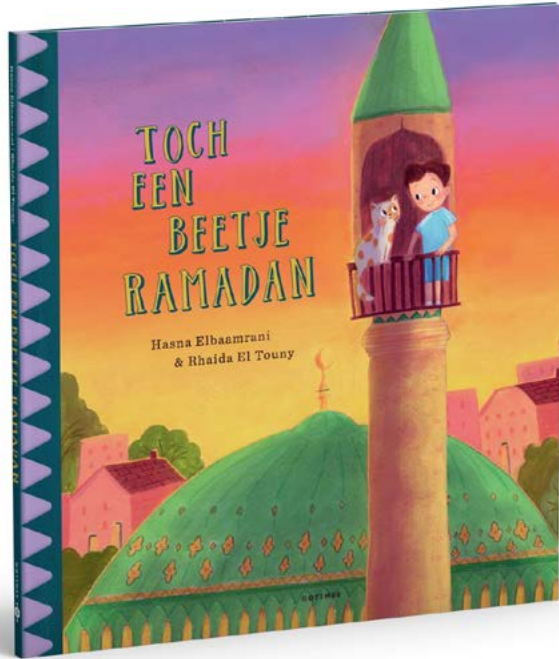

Our wibbly-wobbly friends Arti and Bub are always up for a party. All year round, they celebrate life, rolling from one party to the next. They chase away the cold with a winter-shooing celebration, have a sleepover (even if it's over as soon as they wake up), and throw a wild dance party to celebrate their friendship. And that's just the beginning of the third book in this series, which is packed with many more familiar and surprising celebrations!

The Wibbly-Wobbly Weasels is a witty storybook series by Yvonne Jagtenberg, the creator of Balottie and Go, Percy! Her work is known for its unique illustrations and playful narratives that spark children's imagination. With her dry humour, Jagtenberg masterfully addresses complex themes in an accessible way, making her books both entertaining and moving.

A Bit of Ramadan After All

Hasna Elbaamrani & Rhaida El Touny (ill.)

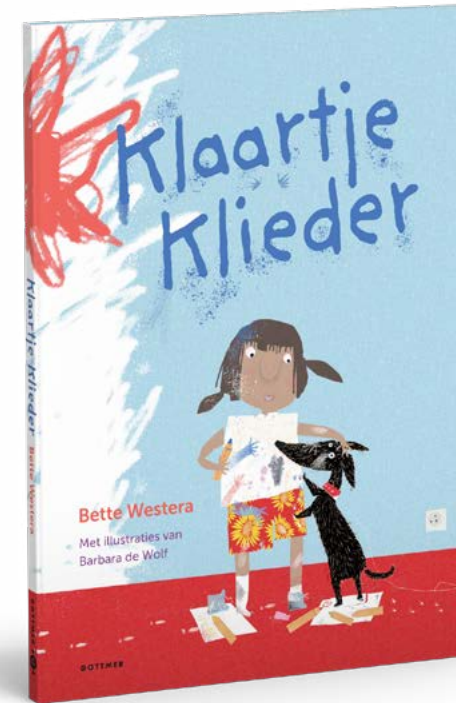

On the eve of Ramadan, Imran is busy decorating the living room with his father and his older sister, Sara. Sara fasts half the day, but Imran is still too young to participate, which makes him a little sad. His father reassures him that Ramadan isn't just about fasting, it's about kindness, caring for others, and good deeds. Imran can certainly participate in those acts of kindness. When he discovers a lost kitten, Imran gets the perfect opportunity to put those words into action. His search for the kitten's owner leads him to a truly special place.

A Bit of Ramadan After All is the perfect picture book for those who celebrate Ramadan and those who love stories about kindness, helping others, and family. Award-winning author Hasna Elbaamrani weaves a tender and meaningful story which Rhaida El Touny brings to life with her warm, vibrant illustrations.

Messy Mae

Bette Westera & Barbara de Wolf (ill.)

Messy Mae is not actually Mae's name, you know. But everybody calls her that because all her drawings are always more scribble than... drawing. One day, Mae's class receives a letter from the former Queen! She has just moved into a magnificent palace, but there's a problem: the walls are white and boring. To solve this, the Queen is holding a drawing competition, and the winner will get the chance to draw on the walls of the palace! Mae dreams of winning, even though she'll never be able to draw neatly enough to please the Queen! Because surely, a Queen will want a pretty picture, all perfectly coloured within the lines...

Bette Westera proves once again just how fun stories for early readers can be, while Barbara de Wolf's playful, hand-cut illustrations would win any drawing competition in a heartbeat.

A bright, engaging story for early readers aged seven and up

With a lively blend of text and illustration on every spread

Marc ter Horst is widely praised for his ability to distill complex topics into funny, witty, understandable books for all ages. His book Palm Trees at the North Pole, about climate change, has been translated into thirteen languages.

Illustrator Tjarko van der Pol made his international breakthrough with his illustrations in the bestseller The Poo Factory Amusement Park. He is renowned for his carefully composed and clever illustrations in which every detail has its purpose.

Reasonable adjustments are discussable.

The ABC concept is not written in stone and could make way for a concept that emphasizes the topic more.

The Wolf and I

Liesbeth Rosendaal

Kik loves exploring the woods near her home, but her parents are planning to move to the city. Her world seems to collapse, and it makes her furious when she learns that a famous nature photographer has been bitten by a wolf near her town, and people seem to think the forest isn't safe anymore. Kik's curiosity takes over. Is the wolf really the problem?

The Wolf and I is the fiction debut by award-winning non-fiction author Liesbeth Rosendaal. Told through alternating chapters from Kik's perspective and the wolf's, readers quickly grow attached to both. It's a gripping story about nature, conservation, and the wild spirit of a wolf, complemented with beautiful black-and-white chapter headers by Silver Brush winner Marieke ten Berge.

Rose Saves the Firefighters

Anke Kranendonk & Puck Koper (ill.)

It's a scorching hot summer day, and seven firefighters are relaxing in the grass, enjoying their ice creams. But then... BEEP BEEP BEEP! The fire alarm blares, and it's time for action! The firefighters scramble to their truck, racing to the scene with tires screeching. But oops! They take a turn just a little too fast... CRASH! The truck tips over, and the crowd gasps. Now, what? Who's going to help these clumsy firefighters, and who's going to save the day and put out the fire? Luckily, little Rose saw it all happen!

In Rose Saves the Firefighters, Anke Kranendonk spins an exciting story inspired by a real-life adventure. With dynamic, playful illustrations by national and international award winning illustrator Puck Koper, this picture book brings the bumbling firefighters and Rose's bravery to life in the most delightful way.

The Biggest Journey Ever

Loes Riphagen

One ordinary day, the stone under which all the insects are snuggled up is suddenly lifted. Their home is gone! Worm says his cousin has a big stone where they can all live together, but to get there, they must embark on a journey. The. Biggest. Journey. Ever!

So, Moth, Earworm, Worm, the Woodlouse, Ant, Weevil and the rest of the gang set off (though Snail runs the other way in his enthusiasm). Their long, thrilling journey takes them over a towering mountain (a bump), across a wild, raging river (a running garden hose), and through the Black Grass Forest (a lawn). With each other and with courage, they tackle huge obstacles and face off against a humongous striped enemy. And just when things get really rough, Snail reappears. One small step for man... One giant leap for bug-kind!

Time-Out

Pieter van den Heuvel

Jack is standing in the corner. Why? He's been given a time-out for doing something naughty. But luckily, he won't be alone for long! Page after page, more and more animals join him - each one guilty of some mischief. From a dog that pulled a post out of the ground to a moose that strolled through the laundry. Gradually, Jack's time-out gets very fun and cosy, until the animals find out that saying 'sorry' lets them leave again. What will Jack do? Say sorry too?

Pieter van den Heuvel is known for his hilariously unexpected storytelling. With Time-Out, he once again delivers a cleverly illustrated tale full of humour and hidden details that'll have kids and parents looking, laughing and thinking. A wonderfully witty picture book with an unexpected twist on every page.

A Christmas Dance for the King

Paul Biegel & Linde Faas (ill.)

'Tomorrow is Christmas!' commanded the king. 'But sire, it's only October...'

But the king does not care – he yearns for Christmas, and he wants a special tree. Now! When a dancer arrives at the palace seeking work, the grumpy king appoints her to be the tree. She must stand frozen on one leg, adorned with baubles and garlands, and is not allowed to move. When she has had enough, she breaks into a whirlwind dance, leaving the king in a state of Christmas-themed shock. This magical story comes to life in Linde Faas' sparkling illustrations.

Paul Biegel (1925-2006), a Dutch author and masterful storyteller 'with an outlaw's heart', is best known for his children's books full of fairy tales, magical adventures, and fantasy stories.

Fairy Tales from Somewhere

Thé Tjong-Khing

The master storyteller and renowned illustrator Thé Tjong-Khing presents his unique twist on sixteen fairy tales. These stories originate from all over the world and date back to ancient times, yet their enduring power remains unchanged. Meet a vibrant ensemble of lesser-known and diverse fairy tale characters, including a brahmin and a tiger from India, and sisters Lolla and Lilia from Italy. The expressive characters, depicted in Thé Tjong-Khing's signature drawing style, leap off the page.

Thé Tjong-Khing (1933) is one of the most celebrated children's book makers in the Netherlands and received numerous awards for his work. He has created a substantial and intriguing body of work, and at 92 years old is not only still working every day but is better at his craft than ever. More than 120,000 copies of this fairy tale series have been sold!

Thé Tjong-Khing was nominated for the Astrid Lindgren Memorial Award 2025 and the Hans Christian Andersen Award 2026

Violet Soapy's List

David Vlietstra & Yoko Heiligers (ill.)

This year at school, eleven-year-old Violet has a great idea: she wants to go on a playdate with every child in her class once. She puts up a list of all her classmates in her bedroom and starts meeting up with each one. Violet discovers that there are some truly unique individuals in her class. She experiences the strangest adventures. But when the play dates seem to become too wacky to be true the story takes an unexpected turn...

With Violet Soapy's List, David Vlietstra has written an original story, peppered with a good dose of humour, about a quirky girl who instantly captures your heart. Vlietstra shares his love of books with primary school students in the third year, where he also teaches. The graphically strong illustrations by Yoko Heiligers make the intriguing world of Violet extra special.

When Thor Still Split the Sky

Stories about the Gods of the Far North

Bette Westera & Annemarie van Haeringen (ill.)

Nordic mythology is packed with famous stories about the powerful gods of the North, which have fascinated the world for centuries. While fanciful and magical, the stories have always highlighted the gods' silly very human-like squabbles and concerns.

In When Thor Still Split the Sky Bette Westera, a multi-award-winning author, skilfully weaves together the tales from the Edda with humour, creativity, and a touch of poetry. Experience everything: from Loki's cunning tricks to Thor's wedding and from the ash tree that connects all things to Idun's magical apples. Annemarie van Haeringen, who recently won the prestigious Max Velthuis Prize, created powerful illustrations that breathe new life into these timeless myths. She added an extra layer of meaning to the stories, making them feel as if they were written just yesterday.

Gran Balconia

Derk Visser

It's a blistering summer, and sisters Shell, Danni, and Jodie are broke. While everyone else is off on vacation, they're soaking up the sun on their Gran Balconia, eagerly awaiting the arrival of a fourth sister (from yet another dad). When their washing machine gives up on them, Shell strikes a deal for a free laundry card at Montana Laundry - by simply batting her eyelashes at Lenny Montana. Lenny pursues her, but Shell is determined to handle boys differently than her mother did. But how do you do that when, despite your best intentions, you fall in love?

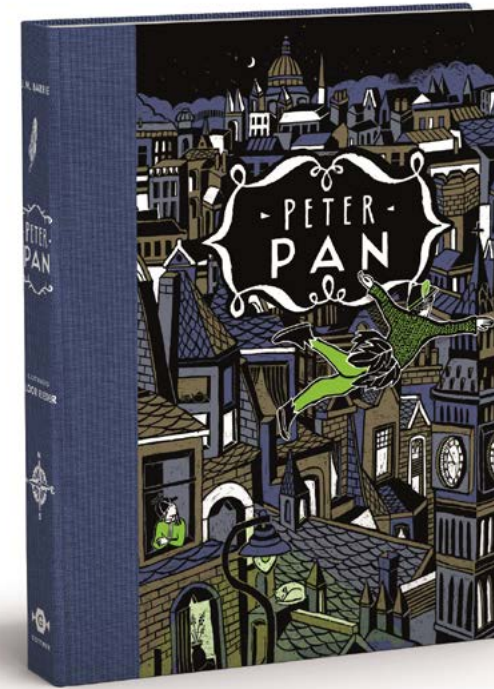

Derk Visser is a master at blending real life with fiction. He writes with heart and humour about life on the edge of society. His stories are raw, his dialogue sharp, and his characters unforgettable.

Peter Pan

J.M. Barrie & Floor Rieder (ill.)

Few stories have a greater claim to the status of classic than Peter Pan. And those who read it understand why: when Peter Pan takes Wendy and her brothers to the island of Neverland to settle a long-standing feud with Captain Hook, it is at once blood-curdling, funny and moving, and an ode to the infinite power of fantasy. Floor Rieder's unique and powerful illustrations make Peter Pan an even more quirky and original book than it already was.

Floor Rieder is an illustrator and designer, mostly known for her children's books. She won the prestigious Golden Pencil Award for her illustrations of the book The Mystery of Life, by Jan Paul Schutten. In the same year Floor illustrated Alice in Wonderland to great critical acclaim. Her work has been awarded national and international prizes and has been internationally published widely. For the Dutch edition a brand new translation was made and lightly edited by master translator Esther Ottens.

A Fly Flew in the Custard

Tasty poems and juicy stories about food

Bette Westera & Sylvia Weve (ill.)

Eating (or being eaten) is at the core of all living things – and while we do it every day, have incorporated in into our languages at metaphors and centred our cultures and habits around it. Eating rarely takes the spotlight as it does in this unique book.

The award-winning duo Bette Westera and Sylvia Weve masterfully illustrate how this universal topic can be transformed into poetry and imagery. In this poetry collection, they explore a variety of food-related themes, including table manners, veganism, and the spectrum of flavours from sweet and salty to umami. Together, they create a richly satisfying banquet of humour, recipes, poems and made-up stories.

A Fly Flew in the Custard is a clever, surprising feast of poems and urban myth stories about food where nothing is off the table!

Must Read!

Marc ter Horst

Stan's dad, who is a driving school instructor, takes everything he reads at face value. When he sees a white van promoting their social media with the words 'Follow us!', he promptly starts following the van around. That same logic has left him with a closet full of useless gadgets he ordered just because the ads said, 'Order Now!' Stan comes to the rescue and launches a street campaign against advertising, information overload and misleading claims. Will his little campaign help make the world a little less overwhelming?

With Must Read! award-winning author Marc ter Horst wrote a funny, fast-paced, and delightfully offbeat story that gets readers thinking about just how much information we all have to deal with nowadays. Marc ter Horst' work has been widely translated.
