Here We Go Again

Loes Riphagen

Look at this colourful crew chilling in the living room. Suddenly Kiki hears a rumbling noise. 'Here we go again!' says Prince. Everyone braces themselves for... wait... For what exactly? There's always something strange and unexpected happening in this house. Out of nowhere, the toilet could disappear, only to resurface in the kitchen. Then a waterfall comes pouring down the stairs. And watch out, here comes another earthquake! Everyone holds on... until, just as suddenly, everything quiets down again. What's going on?

Here We Go Again by internationally renowned author Loes Riphagen is inspired by her own childhood and is destined to become an all-time favourite thanks to Riphagen's familiar, warm illustrations, unexpected turns, funny characters and innumerable easter eggs. Only at the very last moment, the reader starts suspecting there might be a twist... Which we won't spoil yet.

A new gem by picture book superstar Loes Riphagen, with a very personal touch

Ting-a-ling!
30 Verses About Sound
Rian Visser & Iris Deppe (ill.)

Wee-ooo, ding-dong, boom! Small children adore sound. In Ting-a-ling! the funniest sounds pass by, wrapped up in happy verse. Can you click your tongue, hum, and hiss? Growl like a monster or blow bubbles in the bath?

Ting-a-ling! is a new collaboration between Rian Visser and Iris Deppe, known for their successful guessing game book What Animal is This? The short, simple sentences ensure that even the youngest readers understand new words and practice sounds in a fun way. The book also includes playful exercises to practice new sounds together.

A cheerful picture book with verses that support linguistic development

The award-winning What Animal is This? made it into the Picture Book Top Ten

I'm Hungry!
Cat Parker & Aurora Cacciapuoti (ill.)

'I'm HUNGRY!' 'Me too,' says Dad. But oh no... There's no food in the house! There's only one solution: a trip to the store! They put their coats on and walk to the supermarket together. And then of course they'll cook. And then...?

For I'm Hungry!, Cat Parker once again came up with a simple, recognisable, yet hilarious concept: a hungry child, who's completely lost its appetite by the time dinner is served. Why? The father has no idea, but the attentive reader sees it all. Cat Parker and illustrator Aurora Cacciapuoti successfully collaborated before on Cat! and clearly had a taste for more! The result is a sturdy and playful board book full of colourful pictures.

The second book by the bestselling duo Cat Parker and illustrator Aurora Cacciapuoti!

Cat Parker is known for her simple, appealing concepts in which toddlers often outsmart their parents in a funny way

Otter, Would You Like to Cross?

Marjet Huiberts & Marianne van der Walle (ill.)

'What a busy road,' thinks Otter. He needs to cross it to get to the lake and have a nice swim. But there's way too much traffic and he's afraid. It's easy for Bird, he can simply fly. And Kangaroo? She leaps over all the cars with one big jump (carrying her young in her pouch!). 'So why don't you just go under the road,' says Mole. It's safe, though it takes a long time. 'Just climb over!' suggests Chimp. But Otter can do none of those amazing things... After much deliberation, Otter decides to cross, in his own way. Will he get to the other side safely?

In this playful picture book by Marjet Huiberts and Marianne van der Walle, we learn that it's okay to be a bit scared if you do something for the first time. But it also feels the very best! And coincidentally, a young human might just learn something about safely crossing the road!

Virgilius van Tuil

Paul Biegel

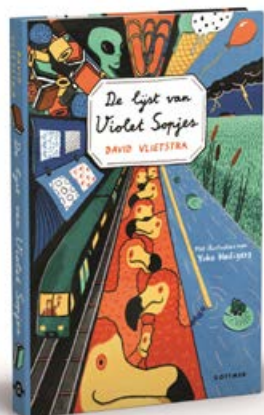

Virgilius the gnome lives on the moors among hundreds of other gnomes, but he's never home for long. He prefers to go out into the world! Which is not to say that he's particularly brave. He just doesn't have a very good eye for danger.

Virgilius longs to look into a mirror and see himself. But you can't find mirrors, except... with humans! All the other gnomes try to stop him, because surely even he must know how dangerous humans can be, but Virgilius is determined and sets off. And so begins an adventure that even Virgilius himself couldn't have pictured in his wildest dreams.

Paul Biegel (1925-2006) is the master storyteller of the Low Countries and one of the most beloved authors in Dutch children's literature. He is best known for his children's books full of fairy tales, magical adventures, and fantasy stories.

The Chances of Jonah Pickleton

David Vlietstra & Yoko Heiligers (ill.)

Jonah Pickleton has a talent: he's exceptionally good at maths. Fractions, geometry and probability of odds, you name it! In fact, he's so good at it, he turns it into an after-school job. He calculates chances for grown-ups who have long forgotten those skills. For instance, what are the odds that an expecting father of twins will have two boys? And how likely is it that Miss Kolmogorov is cheating at the local bingo rather than just being lucky? What Jonah is less good at, is making friends. Actually, he only has the one: Russell. Whereas Jonah prefers social invisibility, odd and strong-willed Russell thrives on standing out. When a new girl joins their class, who also likes maths, Jonah is granted great odds: to go from one friend to two. But when Russell suddenly disappears, things are set in motion that Jonah couldn't possibly have calculated for.

Following the great success of Violet Soapy's List, David Vlietstra and Yoko Heiligers join forces again!

Violet Soapy's List sold over 15,000 copies and received the Silver Pencil Award among other accolades

Blitz! The Brave Wolf Cub

Rian Visser & Lars Deltrap (ill.)

Rob and Moss saved up for a rocket and go on holiday to planet Zero to visit their alien friend Blitz. They're having a lovely time, until at night they are woken by a strange sound: Awooooo! Awooooo! Floating all alone on a raft in space, they find a lost wolf cub. Whilst looking for something to eat for his home planet – where the veggie sausage supply seems to have finally run out – the little wolf drifted off into space during a storm. Blitz and his friends decide to help him.

Rian Visser's Blitz! series is perfect for emerging readers, meeting all the criteria for a first-time-readers book with large print, short chapters, sentences and words, an easy-to-read font, and cheerful illustrations by Lars Deltrap. All books in the series can also be read as stand-alones.

Nearly 140,000 copies sold in the Blitz! series

My Grandma Is a Witch 2

The Monster in the Woods

Naomi Tieman & Nadia Meezen (ill.)

Even though Steve and his grandma (an actual witch!) have magically turned Anna's boring school into a place of colourful wonder, Anna still can't wait for the holidays to begin. Grandma lives in the mountains with her dragon Snout, and Anna and Steve have been invited to stay over for a whole week! They're even being flown there on Snout's back. During the holiday, Grandma tells them how, years back, Grandpa was gobbled up by a monster he'd drawn... that came to life! Something Grandma says leads Anna to believe that Grandpa might still be alive and well inside the monster... And can be saved!

Naomi Tieman and Nadia Meezen collaborated once again to create this exciting, heart-warming and magical sequel to My Grandma is a Witch. Easy to read and whimsically illustrated, this book is perfect for early readers.

East Asian Fairy Tales

Stories from China, Japan, Vietnam and South Korea

Pete Wu & Enzo Pérès-Labourdette (ill.)

East Asia is home to a wealth of beautiful stories. Pete Wu invites readers into a magical world filled with dragons, Jade Emperors, and loyal cranes. He breathes new life into these centuries-old tales while preserving the magic that has allowed them to endure for generations. Don't expect defenceless princesses, waiting for a courageous prince to rescue them. Instead, you'll meet fearless female warriors determined to save their empires from scorching suns and girl-eating dragons. And beware: Enzo Pérès-Labourdette's serpents, tigers and ravens seem almost to slither, prowl and fly straight from the pages. His richly detailed illustrations are an homage to ancient East Asian art styles and make this collection of fairy tales a true delight to explore.

The Little Mermaid

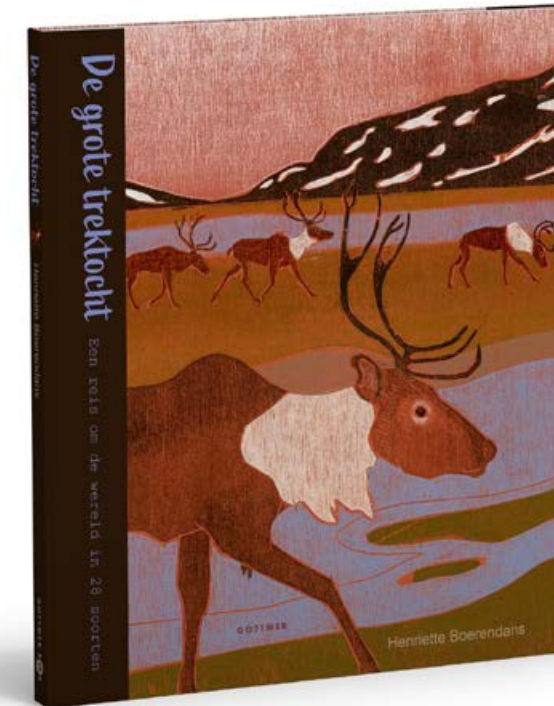

Bette Westera & Aida de Jong (ill.)

The Little Mermaid's parents allow her to do practically anything she wants... except discovering the human world. Still, she dreams of life beyond the sea. In exchange for three silver scales, two copper locks of hair, and her voice, the sea witch gives her a magical potion with which she'll be able to go to the land of the humans. In between the glistening coral, the rippling waves, and the dark sea caves, a timeless tale resurfaces. But do not expect Prince Charming, for this adaption is about a strong heroine!

Bette Westera's Little Mermaid is a whole lot more worldly than her predecessors, without losing the original charm of Hans Christian Andersen's story. Aida de Jong's delightful illustrations form a fantastic collaboration with Westera's storytelling. After The Snow Queen, this is the second, gorgeous fairy tale they have co-created.

Irresistible underwater fairy tale for young and old alike

Bette Westera's adaption has all the ingredients for a modern classic

The Wibbly-Wobbly Weasels Series

Yvonne Jagtenberg

This delightful collection of stories by two-time Golden Brush winner Yvonne Jagtenberg, introduces us to the humour, friendship, and conflicts of two weasels. The friends, Arti and Bub, are quite a pair: Arti is always confused, while Bub is perpetually busy. Fortunately, their adventures usually end well, with a comforting cup of acorn coffee!

The Wibbly-Wobbly Weasels is a witty storybook series by Yvonne Jagtenberg, the creator of Balottie and Go, Percy! Her work is known for its unique illustrations and playful narratives that spark children's imagination. With her dry sense of humour, Jagtenberg masterfully addresses complex themes in an accessible way, making her books both entertaining and moving.

Little Bee

Suzanne Weterings & Yara Ruby (ill.)

A little bee is on a quest to find some sweet nectar, but her journey is filled with challenges. Luckily, she doesn't have to face them alone! The reader can help the little bee by clapping to scare away a bird, making a tent with their hands to provide shelter from the rain, or gently blowing her along so that she can continue her adventure. And at the end of the road? A sweet surprise awaits!

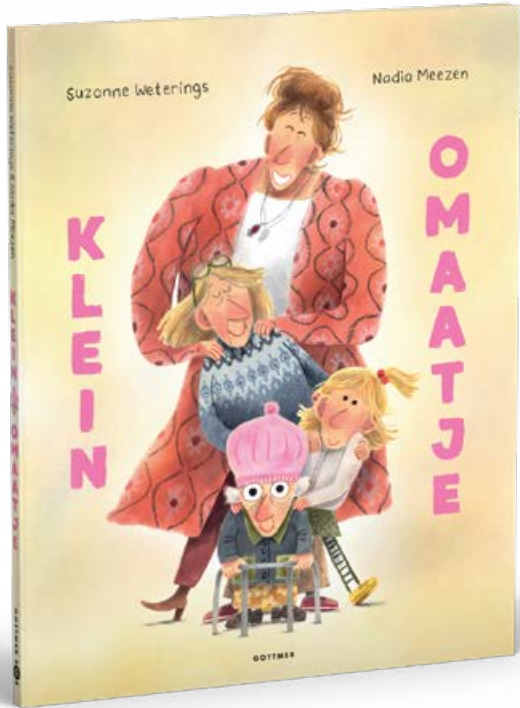

Little Bee is an interactive board book for toddlers, in the tradition of Don't Wake Up The Tiger! by Britta Teckentrup. Through simple, playful actions, young children can become part of the story. Suzanne Weterings' lively, welcoming text invites readers to travel alongside the brave little bee. At the same time, Yara Ruby's charming illustrations create a bright, joyful world, one where curiosity, participation, and a cute bee take centre stage.

The Biggest Journey Ever

Loes Riphagen

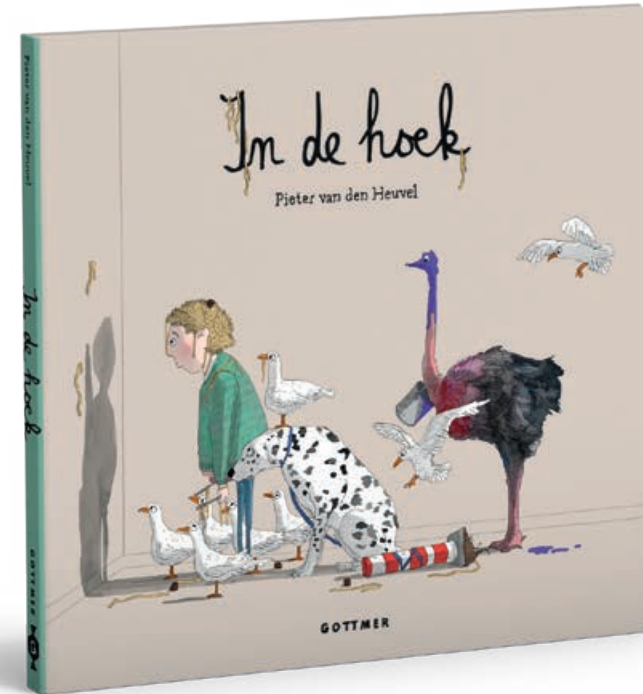

One ordinary day, the stone under which all the insects are snuggled up is suddenly lifted. Their home is gone! Worm says his cousin has a big stone where they can all live together, but to get there, they must embark on a journey. The. Biggest. Journey. Ever!

So, Moth, Earworm, Worm, the Woodlouse, Ant, Weevil and the rest of the gang set off (though Snail runs the other way in his enthusiasm). Their long, thrilling journey takes them over a towering mountain (a bump), across a wild, raging river (a running garden hose), and through the Black Grass Forest (a lawn). With each other and with courage, they tackle huge obstacles and face off against a humongous striped enemy. And just when things get really rough, Snail reappears. One small step for man... One giant leap for bug-kind!

Prepare for a fun twist at the end

Time-Out

Pieter van den Heuvel

Jack is standing in the corner. Why? He's been given a time-out for doing something naughty. But luckily, he won't be alone for long! Page after page, more and more animals join him – each one guilty of some mischief. From a dog that pulled a post out of the ground, to a moose that strolled through the laundry. Gradually, Jack's time-out gets very fun and cosy, until the animals find out that saying 'sorry' lets them leave again. What will Jack do? Say sorry too?

Pieter van den Heuvel is known for his hilariously unexpected storytelling. With Time-Out, he once again delivers a cleverly illustrated tale full of humour and hidden details that'll have kids and parents looking, laughing and thinking. A wonderfully witty picture book with an unexpected twist on every page.

Rian Visser & Noëlle Smit (ill.)

'Hurry up, Dawdle!' Mama hollers each morning. 'We have to go to school.' But before Dawdle is ready, he always has to do a few things first. He needs to tidy up his toy cars, practice a quick tune on his keyboard, build a tower of boxes and blocks or tie his laces. Dawdle finds it hard to hurry. However, one day, he arrives right on time! In a humorous way the author shows that a little lingering and dreaming is sometimes better than hurrying.

Rian Visser is a poet and children's book author. She's known for her playful and funny stories, containing short sentences and clear plot lines, which make them perfect for young readers. Noëlle Smit writes and illustrates. In 2024 she received a Silver Brush.

The Shy Little Bird

Jan Paul Schutten & Liset Celie (ill.)

There's so much noise in the forest today: all the birds are loudly whistling and building nests. The little greenfinch is too shy to ask the female greenfinch if she wants to start a nest with him. He asks the blackbird for help, but she totally misunderstands due to all that chatter! And the jackdaw also hears something completely different than what the blackbird says. And the rook doesn't understand the jackdaw. Will everything turn out alright?

The hilarious mishearings are great fun for young and old alike! And luckily, all of the birds eventually build their nests. A gorgeous picture book written by prize-winning author Jan Paul Schutten and colourfully illustrated by Liset Celie, who is known for her bright and minimalistic illustrations with a nostalgic feel.

When Thor Still Split the Sky

Stories about the Gods of the Far North

Bette Westera & Annemarie van Haeringen (ill.)

Nordic mythology is packed with famous stories about the powerful gods of the North, which have fascinated the world for centuries. While fanciful and magical, the stories have always highlighted the gods' silly, very human-like squabbles and concerns.

In When Thor Still Split the Sky Bette Westera, a multi-award-winning author, skilfully weaves together the tales from the Edda with humour, creativity, and a touch of poetry. Experience everything: from Loki's cunning tricks to Thor's wedding and from the ash tree that connects all things to Idun's magical apples. Annemarie van Haeringen, who recently won the prestigious Max Velthuijs Prize, created powerful illustrations that breathe new life into these timeless myths. She added an extra layer of meaning to the stories, making them feel as if they were written just yesterday.

A delightful retelling of the Edda, the Nordic tales of the gods
